13:40 – 14:40 GMT    Workshop 1

Mixed-Method Dialogue:

Mixed methods is used in research of interest both with qualitative and quantitative methodologies, methods, and data. This workshop will provide opportunities for researchers to explore mixed methods beyond superficial analysis and integration techniques. The aim is to demonstrate advances in mixed methods research and assist participants with incorporating mixed methods analysis and integration procedures into their projects. The workshop will include an interactive dialog to MMR with opportunities for questions and discussion.

14:40 – 14:50 GMT    Break

14:50 – 15:50 GMT

Workshop 2:
Panel Discussion

Interdisciplinary and interconnected Theories:

Migration can be understood through the lens of several disciplines such as political science, political theory, anthropology, sociology and legal studies. This workshop addresses the interconnectedness of migration studies and where the topic brings theories from different disciplines together. This workshop focuses on questions and discussions about the important role of interdisciplinary theoretical connections and how these connections could be practically applied in research.
